

Application Deployment Guide

Applications are deployed using Docker containers.

The production environment runs on Linux.

The deployment process builds a Docker image, runs automated tests, and promotes the tested image to production.

Applications should expose a health endpoint for monitoring.

Previous stable images can be used when a rollback is required.